Public Disclosure Notice on Chancellor University
Cleveland, Ohio
Effective: August 25, 2013

Chancellor University, formerly Myers University, closed on August 25, 2013. Prior to closing the University was accredited by the Higher Learning Commission. Its accreditation ceased on August 25, 2013.

Teach Out Plan approval

Under Commission policy, an institution that closes is required to submit a teach-out plan to the Commission for those students who will continue their academic program in the next year and who want to do so at an accredited institution. Chancellor University filed a teach-out plan with the Commission; the Commission’s Institutional Actions Council approved the plan at its July 2, 2013, meeting. Chancellor University will use Alliant International University (accredited by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges) as its primary teach-out partner to ensure that currently enrolled students have the opportunity to complete their degree programs. In addition, Potomac College (accredited by the Middle States Commission on Higher Education) and Brookline College (accredited by the Accreditation Council of Independent Colleges and Schools) have agreed to serve as alternative options for a number of students. Students wishing to attend one of these institutions should contact the institution directly.

Student Records

Prior to closing, the University made arrangements to have its records stored at the Ohio State Board of Career Colleges and Schools.

About the Higher Learning Commission

The Higher Learning Commission accredits more than 1,000 colleges and universities that have a home base in one of 19 states that stretch from West Virginia to Arizona. The Commission is a private, nonprofit regional accrediting agency. The Commission’s mission is to assure and advance the quality of higher learning. It is recognized by the U.S. Department of Education and the Council for Higher Education Accreditation. The institutions the Commission accredits include public, private not-for-profit, and proprietary institutions at degree levels from the associate’s through the doctorate and from small, specialized institutions through large research universities.

Students, parents, and others from the general public with questions regarding the Commission’s work should contact John Hausaman at the Higher Learning Commission by email at info@hlcommission.org or by phone at 312-263-0456.
